Project Information Sharing

Organizations no longer need to buy expensive applications in order to coordinate and see each other's different information. Your team benefits from a better way to view, communicate, share and collaborate with CAD drawings, schedules, digital photos, PDF documents, spreadsheets, Word documents, 3D models and virtually all types of information needed for the design and construction of building projects. Nothing is easier!

Jackson High, Everett High & Comano Commons – DYKEMAN

Customer Success Story:

An award-winning firm in Everett, Washington, DYKEMAN provides architectural, planning and interior design services for everything from commercial to residential projects. The illustration below represents a 'Live' eZ conference recently conducted by architect Tim Tweitmeyer working with his project team. Dykeman is leading the design and construction of a new prototype building for an important international client, KremeWorks, LLC, developer of the Krispy Kreme franchises for the Northwest U.S. and Hawaii.

The meeting consisted of 14 experts from 7 different companies in 7 different locations. In two hours, team members discussed cost-saving project alternatives and the implementation of important design changes before final approval by the client. With everyone interactively participating from their respective offices, the task was completed without the wasted time, expense and inconvenience of travel. Dykeman saved their customer over $4000 in reimbursable expenses and got the job done faster.
